New energy to the Mission of Hope and Charity

Thanks to the contribution by « Electriciens sans frontiers » Italy

Electriciens sans frontiers Italy is an association that contributes to the improvement of living conditions through solidarity campaigns allowing access to electricity and water. It has started a cooperation with the Mission of Hope and Charity in order to build a photovoltaic plant to be installed on different points of the rooftops. It is the first project launched in Italy by Electriciens sans frontiers in concert with volunteers and suppliers such as Enel Green Power and Prysmian Group for the donation, respectively, of solar panels and electric cables.

As claimed by the Italian Electriciens sans frontieres President Felice Egidi: "We are proud to give to the Mission help and experience through our volunteers' competencies and professionalism. Construction works will start soon, and once completed they will provide electricity to meet the needs of the community, in particular if we talk about kitchen, furnace, laundry and craft workshops. This is going to be an important support for the Mission because of the high costs of electricity supply, relevantly affecting the way activities are managed in a community that welcomes women and men who were used to live on the street and refugees coming from Africa and Asia"..
